Digital Photography Exhibition "Leave No One Behind: World Health Security Needs Taiwan, Taiwan Needs the WHO"

Available online on April 26th

The digital photography exhibition "Leave No One Behind: World Health Security Needs Taiwan, Taiwan Needs the WHO" is available online on April 26th started at 6:00 pm. Feel free to share the link of the exhibition on social media or forward the link to interested parties.

Taiwan has successfully transformed from an international aid recipient to an aid provider; at the online exhibition, more than a hundred photos are shown, in which each depicts the achievements and efforts of domestic healthcare institutions, non-governmental organizations, and civil organizations in international health and humanitarian aid. Many of the photos feature these partners fulfilling the declared vision of "leaving no one behind" in the United Nation's "2030 Sustainable Development Goals" by sharing invaluable medical technology and resources as well as providing the help when most needed.

Through the lenses that shot the photographs, we embark on a journey around the world to see the satisfying smiles and every touching moment of health achievements that represent the hopes and dreams of children and dedicated efforts by partners in health. We hope that the photos could generate greater awareness on the long-term efforts made by Taiwan on international health care. The exhibition exemplifies the importance and necessity of the inclusion of Taiwan in international health network. Our efforts symbolize our dedication in working with health care partners around the world for the betterment of health for all.
