- VI. Applicants should apply to Taipei Economic and Cultural office in Brunei Darussalam. Duplicate applications will not be accepted; the application forms must be complete, and the application documents provided will not be returned.
- VII. The selection principles for scholarship recipients are as follows:
 1. In addition to the written preliminary review, the best candidates will be selected for interviews or video interviews to select recipients and those on the reserve list.
 2. Priority will be given to scholarship applicants who have passed the Test of Chinese as a Foreign Language (TOCFL) and obtained an intermediate or above test certificate.
- VIII. After the awarded recipients are selected and approved by the OCAC, the approved recipient will be notified and receive an official letter by Taipei Economic and Cultural office in Brunei Darussalam.
- IX. Those who fail to obtain admission will lose their scholarship eligibility. The Taipei Economic and Cultural Office in Brunei Darussalam and designated units handling applications should report any vacancies resulting from award recipient relinquishing their eligibility to the OCAC within the specified deadline. The OCAC will then arrange for replacement as needed.
- X. The procedures for initial scholarship receipt, continuing receipt, and application review are as follows:
 1. Initial receipt: Students who have received the award at the beginning of the first academic year should submit the official letter from the OCAC approving the award and other documents proving the award to the school after registration in the first academic year.
 2. Eligibility for continuing receipt:

- (1) Recipients who meet the above criteria should study for more than nine credits per semester during their studies. Top scholarship recipients should have an overall average academic grade of A or above 85 points, and an overall average academic grade of 80 points (or equivalent) or above; Outstanding Scholarship recipients should have an overall academic average of A- or 80 points or above, and an overall conduct average of 80 points (or same grade) or above; if they become exchange students during their studies, their foreign credits and study grades must be recognized by the school first.
 - (2) Those awarded recipients whose grades in the previous school year did not meet the current benchmark will not be allowed to apply. However, if grades in subsequent academic years reach the current benchmark, they may apply again.
 3. After the second academic year, award recipients should submit transcripts that meet the provisions of the preceding paragraph and apply to the school for renewal; the school should review the award recipient's eligibility to renew the award, submit the renewal review results to the OCAC for review, and then notify the award recipient. The school will handle scholarship applications in accordance with regulations.
- XI. If the scholarship recipient's application documents are found to be forged or false, or if he or she is expelled from school, the OCAC will revoke his or her eligibility and pursue related legal liability depending on the seriousness of the situation, and scholarship received should be returned.
